

TOPOLOGICAL OBSTACLES IN CONTROL

YULIY BARYSHNIKOV

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS AT URBANA-CHAMPAIGN & BELL LABS

ABSTRACT. Designers of controlled systems often encounter forced discontinuities: the topology of the configuration space is often different from that of the targeted attractor. In this talk I will discuss the structure of these forced discontinuities and give some examples.